

Cornell Summer Program

Cornell offers an annual Summer Camp on Economics and Business. The goal of the program is to help college students in China gain an in-depth understanding of the most important economic and business challenges facing China, the US and the world, as well as acquiring knowledge of the academic environment, culture and social background of the US. The three-week program offers courses by prominent professors in business and economics, workshops on graduate school applications, seminars on the US job market and career choices, and extensive field trips to other Ivy-League universities, prominent think tanks, and international organizations in New York City and Washington DC. Students will have opportunities to interact with professionals in these organizations.

Application Process

Group Application of Maxdo Students

Program Overview

- courses and research seminars
- business simulation and experiential learning

Date: July 14 - August 3, 2019

Location: Cornell University, Ithaca, NY

Speakers(tentative)

Prof Andrew Karolyi

Prof Panle Jia Barwick

Prof David Easley

Prof Shanjun Li

Prof David Ng

Prof Michael Waldman

Week 1 Highlights

- Convocation ceremony-classes begin
- Graduate school admission workshop
- US career development workshop
- Niagara Falls tour and premium mall shopping

Week 2 Highlights

- Networking with current graduate students
- Guest speakers from leading universities
- Nature exploration and Alpaca farm visit
- Commencement ceremony and reception

Week 3 Highlights

- Washington D.C. attractions
- World Bank, IMF, and Federal Reserve Board
- New York City attractions

Program Fees: 6800USD

Fees included: tuition fees, airport pickups, group application and admission, accommodation, about two meals per day.

FEES NOT INCLUDED: Cost of International Airfare, visa, fee-paying activities, other meals, visa service fees and insurance will be supported by the students.